

Find a Grandparent

where generations meet

Surrogate Grandparent looking for a local family

Would you like to share your family's happy moments with a surrogate grandparent?

Find a Grandparent is a web-based, not-for-profit service that connects surrogate grandparents with young families and brings the generations together!

A surrogate grandparent that lives close by would love to be adopted by a family.

The surrogate grandparents who you find on our website visit families on a voluntary basis. They want to establish a close relationship with the families.

Parents greatly benefit from this service as they have someone to share the everyday miracle of living with children and the children have exciting new experiences with the surrogate grandparent. If you want to start a wonderful relationship that may last for many years consider adopting a surrogate grandparent.

On our website you can view all the surrogate grandparents that are looking for families, including the surrogate grandparent that lives in your area.
